				B. Current Verification of a Graduate Assistant position in the CUPE 3903 Unit 3 collective agreement: The University, through the Faculty of Graduate Studies, currently verifies appointments that meet the criteria for being a Graduate Assistant position within the scope set out at Article 3.01 of the collective agreement. That verification process is as follows: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. The position posting is created in the Academic Resources Management System (ARMS) 2. The posting is carried by workflow through to a representative in the Faculty of Graduate Studies for review prior to posting. 3. The posting is reviewed. 4. If the posting is: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> a. A Graduate Assistant, the posting is approved and flows through to posting for applications; or b. Not a Graduate Assistant, the posting is returned to the PI or other person responsible for the posting, for review. C. Plan for Verification of Research Assistants (non-employment): We take the point made by CUPE 3903 Unit 3 during bargaining that while it is useful for the University to have a means to verify graduate student positions within the scope of the Unit 3 bargaining unit, the proper classification of graduate student work or activities as being within or excluded from Unit 3 can be enhanced by similarly verifying those circumstances in which graduate student activities are properly those of a Research Assistant. Accordingly, I am pleased to inform you that the University is developing a process by which a full-time graduate student's activities, which are in connection with the student's financial assistance from or through the University, will be verified when classified as being a Research Assistant. When complete, verification workflow will be embedded in ARMS which will confirm, prior to transacting and completing any payment information for the Research Assistant, that the activities are in fact

				consistent with the definition of a Research Assistant provided in Section A above. Currently, and going forward, such Research Assistants can be arrived at in two ways: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. There is a conversation between a Principal Investigator (“PI”) and a current graduate student about the relation between the PI’s area of research or proposed research activities and the student’s program and degree requirements; or 2. In Supervision-driven enrolments, new graduate students are offered placement with a PI where an alignment has been confirmed between the PI’s research or academic activities and the student’s program and academic interests during the York University Graduate Degree Application Process. The Research Assistant verification process laid out below will address both instances when the process is in place. Work Performed by Full-time Graduate Students that is not classified as either a Graduate Assistant or as a Research Assistant (non-employment) In closing it is important to note that work may be posted at York University for which a full-time graduate student is a successful applicant, and which is unconnected to the graduate student’s financial assistance that they are receiving from or through the University. 				circumstances, the distinction between a Graduate Assistant or a Research Assistant (non-employment) as set out above is not material, as the work or activities in question are neither.
